TYPES OF INSPECTIONS

Goodada inspections are designed to provide you with independent third party inspection services across all areas of your Quality Control (QC) process. We can tailor an inspection to meet your specific QC requirements. Your assigned inspection supervisor will work closely with you to ensure that the inspection meets your needs.

PRE-SHIPMENT INSPECTION (FINISHED GOODS INSPECTION)

A Pre-Shipment Inspection (Finished Goods Inspection) is an essential inspection. It can be conducted at any facility before shipment. A Pre-Shipment Inspection requires 80% of goods to be completed and packed. Samples of the goods are then randomly selected using the AQL method.

"Goodada conducted a last-minute Inspection for me in Central Europe. Their Inspection team provided me with a very detailed and professional report. The communication service of Goodada was also very good. I am very happy as the inspector found many issues with the products that I was considering purchasing." (Nurul A)

LOADING INSPECTION (OUTBOUND)

A Loading Inspection focuses on the loading process. An inspector will confirm the product quantities and monitor the handling of your goods as they are being packed. All stages of the loading process can be checked and verified by the inspector.

"Goodada assisted my company with a Brazil Inspection. Their communications and response times to any of my questions was excellent". (Jaywant B)

INBOUND CARGO INSPECTION

An Inbound Cargo Inspection checks and verifies products when they arrive at their final destination. It can occur at a customer location, at a port or in a warehouse facility. This inspection is also often used if there is a dispute between the seller and vendor. The inspector can check the quality or quantity of the received order.

"Saved me a lot of money by doing this inspection. Gave our company a 36-page report and they inspected every element of the product. 100% recommend!" (Mark C)

PRODUCTION MONITORING

An Inspector will remain at the factory throughout the production process. This inspection is suitable for companies that require continuous updates to ensure that production timelines and quality control checks are maintained and recorded. An Inspector will monitor the production schedule, supervise the factory's internal quality control, conduct random checks from raw material to the finished products and issue daily reports.

"Goodada conducted an inspection of our products in Peru. The Goodada team kept me updated with every stage, this gave me a lot of confidence. We got reliable results and information about our products." (Zorica D)

DURING PRODUCTION INSPECTION

This inspection is very popular with clients experiencing communication difficulties with their Suppliers. A During Production Inspection focuses on the processes and products being produced. It can uncover problems at an early stage. Our clients are updated on timelines and any identified issues.

"My company used Goodada for many During Production Inspections at an engineering factory in South Korea. The Goodada Inspection team were very responsive to my requests and provided me with the information that I needed to monitor the progress of my order. They were able to quickly respond to any additional last-minute requests that I had." (Linda Y)

EARLY PRODUCTION INSPECTION

An Early Production Inspection focuses on the raw materials to be used to manufacture the products. With this inspection, samples of the raw materials can be collected and, if required, sent to an offsite laboratory for testing to confirm it meets the required standards.

"I used Goodada Inspections to conduct a quality check of my products in Asia. This was an urgent inspection and the team at Goodada Inspections were able to help me out. They produced a very detailed inspection report which also included videos." (Flo R)

QUALITY SORTING

A shipment of products arrives at its final destination. Suppose your customer discovers that there are issues, defects or missing parts with the order. They contact you to advise you that there is a problem with the order, and you must immediately fix it. What can you do to resolve this issue? Many firms use Goodada's Quality Sorting Service to assist them in determining the problem and finding a solution.

"Have been doing a great job over the years - QC inspections and 24/7 assistance. Glad to find them five years ago, glad to keep working with them ever since. (Rositsa H)

TYPES OF AUDITS

SUPPLIER AUDIT

A Supplier Audit takes place at a supplier's office, warehouse, factory or processing facility. Its purpose is to check practices, processes, certification and trading history. It is used by firms who require due diligence research before they place orders or conduct negotiations with the Supplier.

"I used Goodada Inspections to conduct a Supplier Audit in Belgium. The Goodada team provided me with a full report which advised me not to use the Supplier. This has saved me from losing my money as the Supplier was not legitimate. Thank you, Goodada, for the excellent service and for protecting me."
(Xiangse C)

FACTORY AUDIT

A Factory Audit will verify and provide you with a complete and detailed understanding of the factories' production capacity capabilities, quality control practices and processes, and management procedures. A Factory Audit can help you select a producer who best meets your product and customer requirements.

"Goodada conducted an audit for my company of a factory in Italy. I am happy with the report and the work done by the Goodada Inspection team." (Carlos H)

SOCIAL AUDIT

Buyers now demand that firms source ethically produced products without the use of Child Labour or the exploitation of workers. Goodada Social Audits are designed to assist firms in monitoring the treatment of their suppliers' employees.

"Very good communication. Personalized attention, giving all possible facilities". (Pedro L)

CODE OF CONDUCT AUDIT

A Code of Conduct is a policy that informs a company's supply chain partners of its expectations and requirements in terms of ethical treatment of workers and the environment. The public expects that all firms have a Code of Conduct and are actively monitoring their partners' adherence to the Code. Goodada offers a Code of Conduct writing and monitoring audit service.

"The report that they issued is very comprehensive. I recommend Goodada"
(Dawn B)

BUYER VERIFICATION

A Buyer Verification checks that a buyer is legitimate and is capable of being a suitable customer for a company. Our auditors can visit the buyer's office and warehouse to review their business and trade levels. They can also conduct offsite background research on a buyer.

"Goodada conducted an Inspection in Turkey for my company. The Goodada team were excellent communicators and offered me full guidance and support. Their report was full of information which was of benefit to me."
(Zhang S)
